Seventy percent of Montanans support protecting the Badger-Two Medicine, according to the 2016 University of Montana Public Land Survey.

Located between Glacier National Park and the Bob Marshall Wilderness, the Badger-Two Medicine is the cradle of Blackfeet culture. Thirty-five years ago, it was illegally leased for oil and gas drilling against the wishes of the Blackfeet people.

Today, we celebrate the retirement of the last remaining leases.

Major energy companies, BP, Devon Energy, Occidental Petroleum, and Williams support protecting the Badger-Two Medicine area from drilling. These companies are joined by the following Native American tribes and other organizations united to protect the Badger-Two Medicine:

- National Congress of American Indians
- Rocky Mountain Tribal Leaders Council
- Assiniboin, Chipewyan, Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes
- Crow, Crow Eastem Shoshone
- Cree
- Flathead Backcountry Horsemen
- Glacier-Two Medicine Alliance
- Montana Backcountry Hunters and Anglers
- Montana Environmental Information Center
- Montana Sportsmen Alliance
- Montana Trout Unlimited
- Montana Wildlife Federation
- Montana Wilderness Association
- Montana Wildlands Federation
- Northern Arapaho
- Northern Cheyenne
- Nez Perce
- Nez Perce Traditionalist Association
- Oglala Sioux Tribe
- Ojibwe
- Piikani
- Shoshone
- Siksika
- Southern Ute
- Teton’s Conservancy
- United Conservationists
- Upper Missouri Breaks National Monument
- Wildlife Conservation Society
- Yellowstone to Yukon Conservation Initiative

FOR MORE INFORMATION, VISIT BADGER-TWOMEDICINE.ORG